

The Venture Unit system seemed to be working, with a total of 78 Venture Scouts in Streatham at the 1968 headcount, but at Unit level unrest already seemed to be setting in.

In all Units, some activities were being put aside and others concentrated upon. This, of course, was natural, where the organisers would cater for the majority. But this, however, is not the basis of Venture Scouting; It was to be run by the Unit, for the Unit, including every last member of that Unit. Following discussions on this point, it was realised that a larger Unit would be able to cater for the individual in running more activities simultaneously.

It was for this reason, more than any other, that the Estreham and Livingstone Scout Units decided to run their programmes and activities together, forming a mass combination of varying interests, compiled into a mass singularly organised, of diversified activities, thus enabling us to live up to our motto of 'Ubique' - because that's where you'll find us.
